Film Tells How To Handle Problem Of Retarded Children

CHILDREN LIMITED: I saw a film, "Children Limited," at McKinley school the other evening and it was a touching story of mentally retarded and mentally deficient children and the best ways to handle the problem. It was filmed in the State of Washington, where apparently good strides have been made to cope with the situation.

Here in Saline county an organization has been formed of parents of such children and other interested persons, and it was this group that sponsored the film here.

I took notes during the 30-minute film, which told how to make the lives of such children happier and more livable.

It showed pictures and the activities of children who will never leave the world of childhood, and what has happened to them could happen to any child regardless of economic level and intelligence of parents. And neither mother, father nor child itself had anything to do with the condition.

Some of these children, the film said, are treated by others as if they are carriers of a dreaded communicable disease, which is a medieval conception and superstition.

Society, the film pointed out, has been slow in its understanding of mentally deficient children and parents and children alike have suffered although such children could be born into any family.

This prejudice must be abolished and the community must demand special education for such children, it adds, because it is a problem for the community and not for the family alone.

These children must feel wanted, the film emphasized. A pleasant home life should be provided, and normal brothers and sisters can have a great beneficial effect on such a child by playing understandingly with them. They need constant care and attention, love and understanding, the idea being to make their lives as satisfying and creative as possible.

These children like parties, the film showed, and love their ice cream and cake just as well as any normal child. They have their favorite TV programs and really enjoy them. The basic difference in them and other children is in being able to mature intellectually.

Best solution, continued the film, is having special education programs for them. Such schooling must contain a slow rhythm of life because such children live in a life of slow motion. And it helps to put them in competition with themselves, free from the normal competition of the outside world.

Often, however, these people can do certain things as well as the normal person and they should be trained and encouraged along these lines.

Four Airmen Killed in Crash of Stratojet Bomber

FAIRFORD, England (AP)—Four American airmen, en route home to the United States, were killed today when their Air Force, six engine B47 Stratojet bomber crashed and burned on take-off.

Eyewitnesses at the field said the 600 miles an hour bomber stalled in an almost vertical climb from the field here, and plunged to earth.

The Air Force withheld the names of the crash victims, pending notification to next of kin. Eyewitnesses said the crew was trapped when the plane burst into flames. Local fire brigades, crash rescue squads and ambulance teams rushed from Fairfield to the burning plane.

The B47 was the first large jet-bomber to be fitted with swept-back wings.

Tennessee Gov. Frank Clement Wins New Term

Jenkins, Named by GOP, Says He Will Not Oppose Kefauver

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver, unsuccessful candidate for the 1952 Democratic presidential nomination, claimed a landslide victory today over Rep. Pat Sutton for a new Senate term.

Gov. Frank Clement, who became the state's youngest governor two years ago at the age of 32, just as easily won a new four-year term by trouncing Gordon Browning, a three-time governor. Ray Jenkins, special counsel in the recent Army-McCarthy hearings, was nominated on the Republican ticket to oppose Democrat Kefauver, but Jenkins reiterated he did not intend to run against the former crime-buster in the general election.

Kefauver, a liberal in the conservative South, called his triumph a Democratic primary proof that "the state of Cordell Hull and Andrew Jackson believes in forward looking policies at home and abroad."

Sutton had accused Kefauver of being an "internationalist" and of enlisting anti-Southern support in his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1952.

Kefauver, whose win possibly projects him back into the presidential picture two years hence, said "the people of Tennessee were offered isolationism in this campaign and their answer at the ballot boxes was a thunderous No." Returns from 1,919 of the state's 2,315 precincts gave Kefauver 284,945 votes, Sutton 119,341 and two minor candidates a comparative handful. For governor, 2,005 precincts gave Clement 312,972, Browning 131,658 and Judge Raulston Schofield 19,174.

Sutton had also accused Kefauver of being in league with "New York leftwingers" because of his alignment with the Americans for Democratic Action at the 1952 Democratic National Convention.

Kefauver, who became nationally known as chairman of the Senate Crime Committee during its televised hearings, said the basic issue was "war or peace" and accused Sutton of having the support of persons with underworld connections.

Segregation, the paramount issue in some Southern states because of the U. S. Supreme Court ruling, played only a minor role in the Tennessee governor's race. School field campaign strictly on a pro-segregation platform and Brownism promised to keep the schools segregated "within the law."

But Clement never said anything stronger than that the schools would remain segregated during the next school year if the Supreme Court had not issued its decrees on how de-segregation should be carried by that time.

Nun is Killed In Auto Crash

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—A two car head-on collision, one hauling a trailer carrying two race horses, killed a 52-year-old Roman Catholic nun and seriously injured two other persons.

The victim Thursday was Sister Mary Servatia of the Sisters of St. Francis of Mary Immaculate, of Joliet, principal of St. Stephen's School in Streator.

Sister Mary was a passenger in the car driven by Miss Anne Karkara, 41, Streator, who suffered a broken left hip and right arm in the crash.

The driver of the other car, Harold Wells, 62, suffered a broken left hip and both were taken to St. Joseph's hospital here.

Wells was hauling the horses to the Washington Park race track, Chicago, when the accident occurred. His passenger, Duane Mahster, Gunnison, Colo., sustained minor injuries.

Carrier Mills Man Injured In Truck Accident Near Anna

Roy Eugene Milburn of Carrier Mills was in the Harrisburg hospital today receiving treatment following an accident Tuesday in which the truck he was driving went down a 25-foot embankment near Anna.

Milburn was driving a frozen food truck belonging to the Harrisburg Ice Co. and the accident occurred on Route 146 between West Vienna and Anna, about two miles east of Anna. The truck sustained extensive damage.

Legion Votes to Ask Pensions For All Veterans

CHICAGO (AP)—The first floor fight of the 1954 convention of the Illinois Department, American Legion, resulted today in the adoption of a resolution calling for pensions for all veterans.

The vote was 1,561 for, and 912 against. The delegates suspended the rules to adopt a resolution condemning the Eisenhower administration for "false economy" in refusing to support a House bill to increase veterans compensation allowances.

The pensions resolution annually results in a squabble at the state Legion convention. Each time the department calls for veterans' pensions, it has been defeated by the national convention on grounds that it is too liberal.

The vote showed that most support for pensions came from Chicago and northern Illinois posts. Most of the opposition was displayed downstate.

Legion Restudies Charge Against The Girl Scouts

CHICAGO (AP)—The antisubversive committee of the Illinois American Legion will reconsider its proposal to withdraw support from the Girl Scouts of America, a spokesman said today.

Committee Chairman Edward Clamage said he conferred with two leaders of the Girl Scouts movement Thursday night and agreed to study the matter further.

The anti-subversive committee had charged the Girl Scout leadership with supplying its members with "United Nations and world government" propaganda.

The Illinois department of the Legion is in convention here through Saturday.

Clamage said he talked to Eleanor Schmitt, a national staff Girl Scout member, and Mrs. Leonard Davidson of Highland Park, regional chairman, after the committee's proposal was published.

He said he agreed to study the Girl Scout handbook "thoroughly" after the Girl Scouts denied the committee's assertion that patriotic material, including the Bill of Rights, had been deleted from the manual.

He said the committee's proposal was based on a news story that indicated the Girl Scouts were using a "world citizenship type of badge."

"We're against injecting world citizenship into things," he said. National Legion Commander Arthur J. Connell told the opening session that the American Medical Assn., had made an "effort to cripple the present veterans hospital program."

AMA President Dr. George F. Lull promptly replied that the AMA "always supported the best medical care possible for the veteran injured in service but was inclined to look with a critical eye at care provided by the federal government to the veteran with non-service connected disabilities."

Gov. William G. Stratton, who also addressed the opening session, urged the delegates to exercise an "influence for better government on all levels."

Rain Here Totals .80 Inch; Congo Pump is Started

Last night's downpour totalling .80 inch in Harrisburg and Congo pump was started again.

The Congo, which started pumping at 4 a. m. Sunday after heavy Saturday night rains, stopped at 11 a. m. Wednesday when the water supply in Middle Fork was exhausted. This pumping, which puts around 900 gallons of water a minute into the reservoir, was resumed at 8 p. m. yesterday.

Harrison Kibler, who reported the Harrisburg figure, said the rainfall at Galatia totaled 74 inch and at Dam 50 near Shawneetown the precipitation was .84.

Amos Doom, superintendent of the water department, said the powerful new pump installed on Pankey Branch at Sloan street to bring the Blue Lake water into town, has not been operating much of the time because it is being made necessary to tie down the water line more securely because of its power.

Two-Day Fire Subdued; Six Dead, 38 Hurt

PEKIN, Ill. (AP)—Firemen stood guard today over the smoldering ruins of a two-day distillery fire that killed six persons, injured 38 and burned up almost five million gallons of whisky.

Damage was estimated at 7½ million dollars by President Russell Brown of the rubble-strewn American Distillery Co. He said, however, that the plant, which employs 650 persons, would be back in operation Monday.

The fire, touched off by a bolt of lightning early Thursday night, was declared out of danger Thursday night. The blaze, once subdued, erupted into several explosions and alcohol flames shot high into the air before it was brought under final control.

Four of the distillery's buildings were destroyed and some others suffered moderate to heavy damage. Officials estimated that the lost whisky was the equivalent of about 22 1/2 million fifth bottles or more than 500 million one-ounce drinks.

Brown said that all persons were accounted for and there was no fear of more victims in the rubble.

The dead were all distillery employees who live in Pekin. Four of the victims were crushed to death by a raining of bricks, sheet metal and flaming alcohol when a 56,000-barrel warehouse blew up.

The dead were Lawrence Neave, 39; Marion Graber, 53; Edward Winkler, 47; Richard Eertmoed, 32; William Kohler, 35; and James Dancy.

Among the more seriously injured are Fire Chief Calvin Pekreya of North Pekin; Ray Miller, Pekin's first assistant fire chief; and Joseph Sarek, a federal storekeeper assigned to the plant.

Brown said his loss estimate did not include 30,000 barrels stored at the American Distillery plant for other firms. He said he could not estimate their value.

He said the losses of the four structures—three barrel racks, houses (where whisky is stored to age) and one bottling and storage warehouse—were covered by insurance.

The plant had been shut down since July 1 and only a skeleton crew was on duty when the disaster struck.

New Strikes Seen at Paducah, Oak Ridge Plants

WASHINGTON (AP)—CIO atomic energy workers appealed to President Eisenhower and the Atomic Energy Commission today to intervene in their five-month wage dispute at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Paducah, Ky., atomic plants.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new strike of 4,500 atomic energy production workers at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Paducah, Ky., loomed today with the collapse of federal mediators' efforts to settle the five months-old wage dispute.

If a strike materializes, the government is expected to go to court for a Taft-Hartley anti-strike injunction for 80 days. It was prepared to take this course when the same workers struck for four days last month.

The plants involved in the wage dispute produce the uranium materials used in the atomic bomb. A presidential fact finding board already has reported that a strike at the two plants would be a sharp blow at national security.

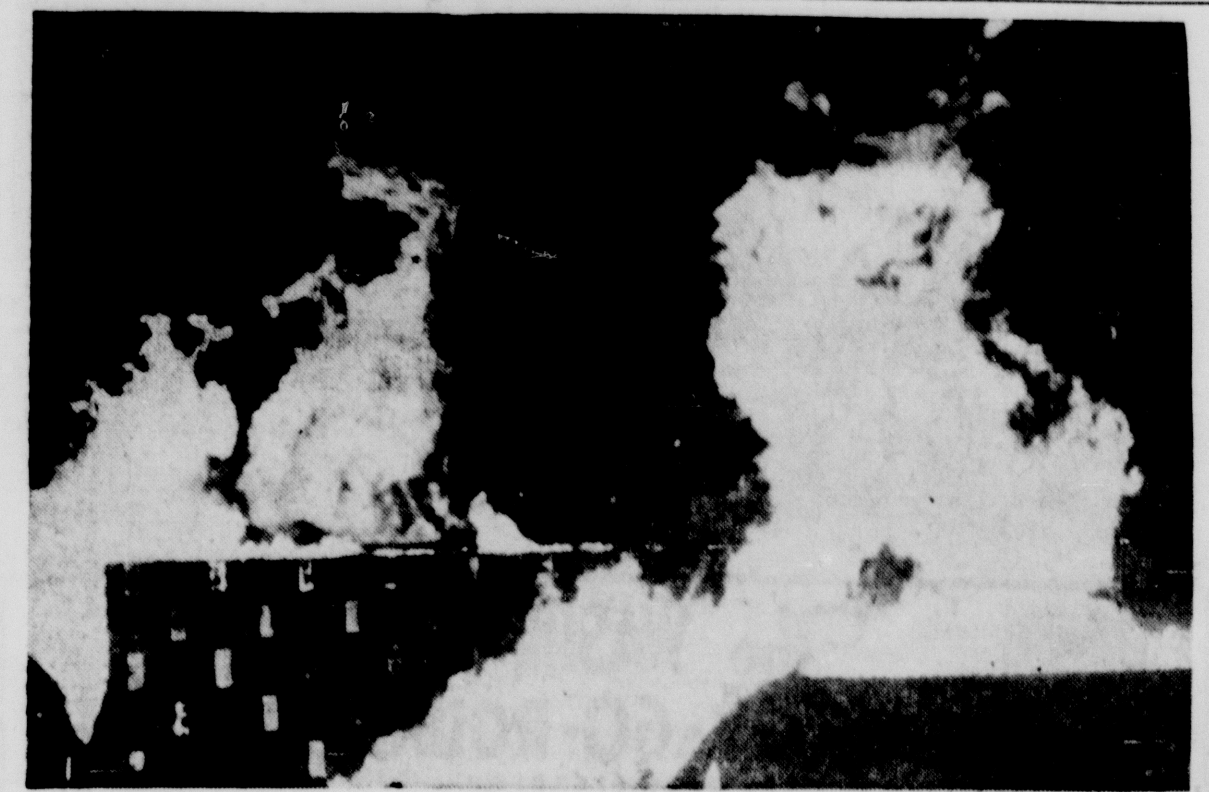

Elwood Swisher, president of the CIO Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers, said Thursday that with the collapse of the mediation talks the next step "would seem to be a strike."

However he said he would remain here for a while to see if other moves short of a strike were possible. Swisher told reporters there is a possibility the union may appeal directly to the Atomic Energy Commission for help in settling the dispute.

Swisher said the union has set a new strike date but refused to name it. He said a reported Aug. 10 date is only "a rumor."

Federal Mediation Director Whitley P. McCoy, after adjourning the mediation talks Thursday with the union and representatives of the Union Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Corp., which operates the atomic plants, said the government will have to consider a Taft-Hartley injunction.

He said a new strike now appears inevitable.

Aunt Polly Anderson Celebrates Her 102nd Birthday

"Aunt Polly" Anderson, one of the state's oldest living residents, quietly observed her 102nd birthday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ollie Raley, in Galatia today.

Mrs. Anderson has been confined to her bed for the past several weeks due to infirmities of her advanced age. Prior to that time, she has been in good health and quite active about the household.

Born near West End in 1852, she is the daughter of William and Elizabeth Green, both now deceased. She has made her home for the past several years with her only daughter, Mrs. Raley, who is 78.

Throughout her lifetime, "Aunt Polly" has never lived more than 20 miles from the place of her birth and rarely has taken long trips from the area.

Because of her present condition, no family celebration was planned in observance of her birthday.

Study Fish Kill By Insecticide In Little Wabash

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—An insecticide sprayed on a corn field may have caused a heavy fish kill in the Little Wabash River near Carmi, a state engineer said today.

Chief Sanitary Engineer Clarence W. Klassen said insecticide washed off the corn by a recent three-inch rain has been advanced as one possible reason for the death of fish reported this week.

Klassen said he wouldn't be sure, however, until he gets a final report from engineers making an on-the-spot investigation.

The State Conservation Department also has investigators in the Carmi area making estimates on the number of fish killed.

Klassen said a fish kill by a crop insecticide has occurred at other places in the country and is not rare. It is an "extremely difficult laboratory process" to detect the insecticide in the water, however, he said.

"We're trying to find out now what it was, how much they used, and how soon after they used it the rain came," he told a reporter. Klassen said another possible reason for the death of fish may have been that a heavy, cold rain dropped to the bottom of the river, forcing the warm water upward and reducing the oxygen content.

Or it may have been that the water was very turbid from the abundant shower and this killed the fish, he said.

Klassen said engineers were satisfied that the condition had produced "no hazard" to the Carmi water supply. He said the fish kill occurred in "one slug" and isn't happening any longer.

Survey Shows Employment Rise

WASHINGTON (AP)—Employment rose by 50,000 and unemployment decreased by 1,000 last month, the government reported today.

A nationwide survey showed that total employment in the week of July 5-11 was 62,148,000. The Commerce and Labor departments said in a joint statement.

The number of jobless was 3,346,000. The total civilian labor force rose by 49,000 to 65,494,000.

Championship Events of Horse Show Held at Saline County Fair

Southern Illinois Talent Show to Be Held Tonight

Carrying out the age-old tradition of the entertainment world that "the show must go on," exhibitors and officials at the Saline County Fair staged the Thursday night program under the most adverse conditions, but put it over to the satisfaction of a crowd that was disappointed for a Thursday, but gratifying for a rain-swept night.

It was stake night for the horse show and the five events were presented as scheduled. The track was a sloppy, muddy mess from the heavy rains that fell shortly before show time and there was a sprinkle of rain throughout most of the show, but, with only slight variation, everything went along as though the conditions were perfect. The rains did cause the cancellation of the special entertainment events.

Tonight the Southern Illinois talent show will be presented. The program is listed to start at 8 p. m. with a concert by Roland Fenton and his orchestra. Fenton is a veteran of the music world and has a good band that will give out with top-notch entertainment, it is reported.

Following the concert some of the top entertainers in southern Illinois will compete for the big prize money. The program should be completed by 10 p. m., manager Hugue Walker stated this morning.

Tomorrow night the fair will close with the annual Saline County Beauty Pageant and Automobile Show.

Results of the horse show (race results are carried on the sports page)—Western Parade Class: Top Hat, rider Dixie Edwards, owner Dixie Edwards Stables, Plainville, Ind., first; Golden Sandy Boy, owner and rider Thelma Wilson, Mt. Carmel, second; Royal Sheik, rider Henrietta Hays, owner J. D. Hays, West Frankfort, third; Juddy, owner and rider, Alice Carlton, Marion.

Local indignation was concentrated on tactics used by German police, but there also was considerable criticism of continued use of the U. S. requisition power so long after the war.

The requisitioned homes, now housing 80 Germans, were to be torn down to make room for some 600 apartment units to be used by American occupation families.

The trouble started Wednesday, when police-escorted German assessors visited Bremerhaven's "Blink" area to appraise the requisitioned buildings.

About 500 householders, including a number of women, took up pitchforks and fenceposts to drive away the officials.

Some 5,000 shipyard workers assisted the householders when assessors returned with 100 police.

The workers barricaded themselves in the houses, resisting the city's entire 250-man police force, and then "marched on city hall" to demand that Mayor Gerhard Rumpf investigate "police brutality."

Lightners Drill Well To Save Rose Bushes

To save their roses, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Lightner are having a well drilled in their yard at 300 East Church street.

The well, being drilled by Quenby Richey, is expected to go down 100 or 125 feet.

Mrs. Lightner said she had more than 400 rose bushes in her yard and that 11 had died due to drought conditions. Because of present water restrictions and because there will be no Lake Harrisburg water this year, the well is being drilled, she explained.

U. S. Requisition Of Homes Starts German Riots

BREMERHAVEN, Germany (AP)—German authorities today ordered a full-scale investigation of housing riots—West Germany's first serious anti-American demonstration since World War II.

Officials were evasive about casualties and other details of the outbreak, but it was reported at least two German policemen and a number of housewives were injured.

No Americans were directly involved in the disorders, which were touched off by a U. S. order requisitioning 25 German homes.

Watkins Elected Chairman of Group of Six

Direct Television, Radio Broadcasts Of Hearings Barred

By United Press

The six senators who will consider charges against Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy began setting up the necessary machinery today.

The group met and unanimously elected Sen. Arthur V. Watkins (R-Utah) chairman, and Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) vice chairman.

The informal meeting also considered procedures for weighing the accusations which the Wisconsin Republican's opponents hope will lead to his censure by the Senate.

The blue-ribbon group also decided to bar direct television and radio broadcasts of their hearings. Watkins said the hearings probably will be open to reporters or the committee will furnish transcripts to newsmen.

Watkins said he does not expect the hearings to start until week after next.

Clearing away of procedural matters will enable the committee to attack its difficult task in earnest next week after the Senate has disposed of its legislative program.

McCarthy, meanwhile, continued his activities as chairman of the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee. He announced he intends to question 30 Army officers, including five generals, to learn about what he called their "active" part in the case of Dr. Irving Peress. Peress, a dentist, received an honorable discharge from the Army after he refused to answer questions about alleged Communist connections. McCarthy has called Peress a "Fifth Amendment Communist."

McCarthy said he received the names of the Army officers in a letter from Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens.

Other Congress highlights: Investigations: It was disclosed that the House granted a near-record $2,732,050 for investigations during this two-year session. Chairman Karl M. Lecompte (Iowa) of the House Administration Committee, said the sum is second only to the $2,864,500 granted the Democratic 82nd Congress in 1951-52. However that Congress left $634,891 unspent.

Alien Property: Rep. Katherine St. George (R-N.Y.) demanded Congress investigate the seizure of enemy property during World War II. She said the government took over Japanese and German property in this country in a manner "contrary to any jurisprudence or any law that this country has ever acted under." She blamed the late Harry Dexter White, one-time treasury official, whom she termed a "true Communist."

Nomination: The Senate Foreign Relations Committee withheld approval of the nomination of Wright Morrow, an Eisenhower Democrat from Texas, to be a U. S. delegate to the United Nations General Assembly. Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas refused to confirm or deny reports he objected to the choice. Morrow was Democratic national committeeman when he backed Mr. Eisenhower.

Farm: Both sides were claiming victory in the rigid versus flexible farm price support fight nearing a showdown in the Senate.

Sen. Milton R. Young (R-N.D.), a leader of the drive to continue high supports, said he believed his forces had gained enough votes for victory. Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland predicted victory for the administration's flexible plan.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY
In thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand are pleasures forever more.—Psa. 16:11.

Some imagine that God frowns on pleasure and happiness. Just the contrary is true. A dyspeptic countenance is no sign of a Christian; God has carefully provided joy for those who are in harmony with His will.

Watch That Gun!

BOSTON.—(UP)—Indoor shooting accidents—many of them of the didn't-know-the-gun-was-loaded variety—took more than 1,000 lives in the United States during the past year. The Institute For Safer Living also reported that such accidents caused non-fatal wounds to nearly 50,000 other persons.

"I Could 'ave Sworn the Bloke Smiled"

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
By DREW PEARSON

Drew Pearson Says: Senate May See Another Filibuster on Atom Bill; Senate Amendments to A-Bill Affect American Economy For Years to Come; Senators Will Battle to Retain Their Amendments.

WASHINGTON.—Chances are that Congress has not seen the last of the record-making 13-day filibuster over the future control of atomic energy. Another filibuster may be just around the corner.

Despite the hot weather and the hot air, however, nothing could be more important to you and your children. For this bill spells out a pattern for the energy that will turn the factory wheels and power plants of the nation beginning perhaps in less than 25 years.

Reason for a possible new filibuster is that congressional conferees are now haggling to adjust the differences between the House bill and the Senate bill—especially the important amendments which the Senate put into the A-bill, thanks to the harassing force of the 13-day filibuster.

The House conferees are determined to knock these out. Furthermore, the predominant majority of the Senate conferees are old school reactionaries whose neck-bristles are already up over the Senate amendments.

To understand what the haggling and filibustering is all about, here is a thumbnail sketch of the more important disputed amendments and what they mean to you and the future economy of the nation.

Water Power Sites and Atomic Energy—One vital amendment introduced by Senator Humphrey, Minnesota Democrat, applies the rules of the Federal Power commission to the leasing of federal fissionable materials.

What this means is that since falling water which generates water power is regulated by the government, the neutrons which have been developed by the government at a cost of twelve billions likewise are to be regulated under the same rules as the leasing of water power sites.

The Federal Power commission has built up through the years a tried-and-tested set of rules for leasing dam sites to private utilities. Power rates are based on costs, and the power commission has a set of rules to prevent the padding of costs.

Such padding is even more important regarding atomic power, since the private atom plants will sell plutonium back to the government, and the price they can charge the government is all-important. If they are permitted to charge a high price they can pay for the entire cost of their plant in a few years, meanwhile using a government-developed patent.

House conferees and some senators would like to knock out this Humphrey amendment applying Federal Power commission rules to atomic energy. They don't want the big business firms which will generate atomic power tied down by the rules of the Federal Power commission.

Government Construction of Atomic Reactors—An amendment introduced by Senator Ed Johnson, Colorado Democrat, permits the government to build an atomic reactor, in other words, a plant for generating peace-time atomic power.

In contrast, Congressman Sterling Cole of New York introduced an amendment providing that the government cannot build an atomic reactor. Cole wants no competition with private A-plants.

Senator Johnson, on the other hand, argued, and the Senate finally agreed, that just as the government built Boulder Dam, Grand Coulee, Bonneville, etc., to serve as a competitive yardstick to private power companies, so the government should also build its own atomic energy plant to serve as a similar yardstick.

Senator Hickenlooper, Iowa Republican, in charge of the Senate bill for Eisenhower, at first introduced an amendment directly contrary to Johnson, providing that the government could not build a reactor. Then he withdrew it, when Senate fighting got tough. He will undoubtedly vote in the conference committee, however, to knock out Johnson's safeguards.

Anti Monopoly—Senator Langer of North Dakota, the only Republican successfully introducing a modifying amendment, tacked onto the bill a safeguard against violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act. If any company producing atomic energy shall be convicted of violating the antitrust laws, Langer specified, its license automatically reverts to the United States, which shall license it royalty free.

When this proposal came up for debate, Hickenlooper was inclined to favor some kind of anti-monopoly safeguards, but observed: "Perhaps this is too important to act on in a hurry. Perhaps we should hold hearings on this provision."

"That's exactly the point we've been making," replied Langer. "We've been trying to tell you that this whole bill was too important to be rushed through Congress in record time."

What Langer referred to was the fact that the Senate received committee prints of the atom bill only one day before debate started. It was obviously impossible to study such an important bill in one day, on top of which Senator Knowland expected to pass it in one additional day of debate.

Opponents of the bill suspected that it had been purposely saved until the last minute in order to ram it through in the hot and hectic closing days of Congress with out too many senators realizing its significance.

Patent Protection—One of the most important amendments of all, though a complicated one, was introduced by Senator Bob Kerr, Oklahoma Democrat, providing for the compulsory licensing of patents for a period of 10 years.

The Eisenhower administration had recognized that new patents developed by private enterprise must be made available to other private concerns for a period of five years. Kerr extended the period to 10 years.

Theory behind this is the same as that existing in the automobile industry, where auto patents are soiled and each company has a right to the patent of his competitor. This is one reason the auto industry has made such progress.

Likewise, atomic patents so far have been pooled, with Uncle Sam owning all the patents. In the past eight years, the U. S. government has filed 606 patents on atomic energy, and this pooling of patents, in turn, is why atomic energy also has jumped ahead with such amazing rapidity in the past eight years. There has been no strangulation of new processes.

However, with the turning over of these patents to private industry, Eisenhower drafters of the new bill recognized that some of the big companies which have been working with the U. S. government might be nursing new secrets up their sleeves, ready to bring them out after the passage of the bill.

Several big private firms—Monsanto Chemical, Eabcock and Wilcox, Union Carbon and Carbide, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, and General Electric—have been working with the government. So it was argued that they should not get any advantage or head start over other firms in developing peacetime atomic energy.

That was why Leake-dissers specified a five-year patent pool.

However, this was considered too "socialistic" by some House Republicans, particularly Congressman Sterling Cole, chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy committee. He introduced an amendment in a secret, closed door committee meeting knocking out the five-year patent pool. But he got rebuffed by Hickenlooper of Iowa.

"You can't go on the floor of Congress and oppose the President," warned his fellow Republican.

In the end, Cole was voted down 7 to 1.

But Senator Kerr went further than Eisenhower. He extended the patent pool to 10 years, on the ground that it would take four to five years to build a reactor, and that the patent pool should continue for five years after that.

It was also argued on the Senate floor that smaller firms will have to pay through the nose for the head start obtained by a few of the big companies that have had the inside track with the Atomic Energy commission. Therefore, all are entitled to a 10-year patent pool to catch up.

A majority of the Senate agreed, and this is another of the hotly contested points now being debated backstage in joint conference between the House and the Senate.

It's a pretty complicated debate, but it's one which will affect the history of the U. S. for many years to come.

PHILADELPHIA—(U.P.)—Merton B. Tice, Mitchell, S. D., was installed today as commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the close of its 55th national encampment.

Also installed were Timothy J. Murphy, Dorchester, Mass., senior vice commander, and Cooper T. Holt, Chattanooga, Tenn., junior vice commander.

Tice, who along with the senior and junior vice commanders, was unopposed, succeeded Wayne E. Richards, Arkansas City, Kan.

The thousands of delegates attending the six day meeting adopted a number of resolutions including a demand that Congress outlaw the Communist Party. They also voted to refrain from conducting their own investigations into Red activity.

Airmen Ordered to Wear Uniforms in Moroccan Cities

CASABLANCA, Morocco (U.P.)—The U. S. Air Force ordered its servicemen today not to appear in Moroccan cities without their uniform.

The order apparently was given so the Americans could be more easily recognized and not involved in a wave of terrorism against the French.

Five Arabs were wounded in terrorist attacks here Thursday night and early today, boosting the casualty toll for this "month of vengeance" past the 100 mark.

A crudely made bomb exploded against a clothing shop today but caused little damage.

"They haven't given me a bit of trouble, Mrs. Nixon—they've been amusing themselves all evening and now they're in bed!"

Mrs. Omar McMackin, Wife of Ex-Legion Commander, to Head Illinois Auxiliary

CHICAGO (U.P.)—Mrs. Ruth McMackin, a Southern Illinois American Legion wife, will make Legion history Saturday.

She'll be the first president of the Illinois Legion Auxiliary whose husband served as Illinois Department commander.

Her husband, Omar, a funeral director from Salem in Marion County, was Illinois Department commander in 1945-46.

Mrs. McMackin will inherit the auxiliary gavel Saturday from retiring President Mrs. Alvin G. Strum, Chicago.

"During my husband's regime as state commander, it was his day," Mrs. McMackin said.

"Now it's going to be my turn," Mrs. McMackin, in addition to her Legion activities, is Southern Illinois adviser of women's activities of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

She is active in Red Cross, Business and Professional Women's Club work and at the Grace Methodist Church of Salem.

Mrs. McMackin said she's looking forward to taking over as state auxiliary president.

"Our auxiliary gave $465,556.51 in actual aid to hospitalized Illinois veterans last year," she said.

"We hope it can be even more this coming year."

Case resigned to accept an appointment as executive secretary-treasurer of the International Conference of Agricultural Economists. He will remain on the faculty half-time and devote the rest of his time to the new position.

Studebaker Workers Reject Pay Cut
SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP) — CIO United Auto Workers at the Studebaker Corp. rejected a pay cut Thursday night which had been agreed to by union officials.

By a show of hands, the workers rejected a package deal which would have reduced pay an average 10 to 15 per cent.

Paul G. Hoffman, chairman of Studebaker's board of directors, said officials of the auto manufacturing company had no immediate comment on the action.

However, Hoffman said top officials of Studebaker took a 20 to 30 per cent reduction in salaries several months ago.

41 Illinois Counties Listed Emergency Drought Loan Areas
WASHINGTON —AP— The Agriculture Department Thursday designated 41 drought-stricken Illinois counties as "emergency loan areas."

Officials said farmers in the counties would be eligible for emergency disaster loans from the farmers' home administration. Drought during the past 18 months has severely damaged crops, pastures, livestock and poultry in the area.

The counties named were: Adams, Bond, Brown, Calhoun, Case, Christian, Clark, Clay, Clinton, Coles, Crawford, Cumberland, Edwards, Effingham, Fayette, Franklin, Greene, Hamilton, Jasper, Jefferson, Jersey, Lawrence, Macoupin, Madison, Marion, Monroe, Montgomery, Morgan, Moultrie, Perry, Pike, Randolph, Richland, Sangamon, Schuyler, Scott, Shelby, St. Clair, Wabash, Washington and Wayne.

Gov. William G. Stratton had requested such action as well as a relaxation of the total depleting allotment, to allow stricken farmers to grow more feed crops.

Second in Series of Concert Broadcasts Over WEBQ Monday

The second in the series of radio concerts sponsored by the Harrisburg Community Concert association will be heard Monday evening Aug. 9 from 9 to 9:30 over station WEBQ.

Announcer and director of this program is John Schork who plays recordings by artists available through Community Concerts. Mr. Schork also tells the aims and the future plans of the Community Concert association.

On last Monday night's program the music was a recording by the "Carolers," a group who has appeared in Harrisburg, and songs by Dorothy Sarnoff from "The King and I." Miss Sarnoff too has appeared on Community Concerts in Harrisburg.

Next Monday night's program will be similar, and the public is invited to listen for an evening of relaxation.

Sewell Avery Ousted As President Of Lumber Company

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—Sewell L. Avery, 80, who as chairman of Montgomery Ward has ousted many lesser executives, has been ousted as president of a lumber company here, it was disclosed.

The board of directors of the Cadillac-Soo Lumber Co. ousted Avery July 14 and replaced him with W. R. Murphy, 30, son of Waldo J. Murphy. Avery had removed Murphy's father as treasurer six years ago after he became president.

Company officials declined to discuss why Avery was removed. But it was learned there had been a dispute over a dividend increase, which Avery opposed.

BITTER SAGE

By Frank Gruber

Copyright 1954 by Frank Gruber

THE STORY: After foiling a stagecoach robbery in Turkey Creek, Wes Tancered, who goes under the name of John Bailey, gets a job as a printer in the cattle trail town of Sage City. Luke Miller, who runs the paper, doesn't know that "Bailey" is Wes Tancered, the man who shot the "Rob-in Hood" outlaw, Sam Older.

IV

Tancered heard a burst of gunfire on South Street. "That's what I'm fighting," said Luke Miller. "You mean there are people who approve of that?"

"Jacob Fugger approves of it. He approves of anything the Texas men want to do."

"I saw Fugger's name on a store," Tancered said.

"There's a lot of stores you didn't see it on," Miller exclaimed. "Places he owns or has an interest in. Fugger's our local tycoon, in addition to being the mayor of Sage City. In other words, he runs the town. That's why I'm carrying $300 worth of advertising instead of $300. And it's also the reason I'm doing $20 worth of job printing a week. And that's why I can't pay you more than $20 a week."

"I don't see how you can afford to pay even that much."

"Well, there's some money comes in from subscriptions and sales of the paper. People like the Star, even if Fugger doesn't," Miller looked at Tancered.

"When do I start?"

"Right now, if you want to. We go to press tomorrow. Move. He turned and called to the elderly printer. "Move, this is our new man, Mr. Bailey."

"John Bailey," Tancered said, quickly.

"John Bailey, Mose Hudkins." Tancered shook hands with the old printer. "A cousin of mine has a shop back in Sterling, Ill."

Hudkins said. "He had a man named Bailey working for him a couple of years ago. Relation?"

Tancered shook his head. "I never worked in Sterling."

"This man's name wasn't John, as I recall. Thought you might be related to him."

"I have no relatives in the printing business."

"I've got one," declared Miller. "My wife. She's been helping out on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. That reminds me, Bailey, you'll need a place to live."

"I checked in at the hotel."

"You won't get much sleep there. Not with the Texas men in town."

"The proprietor wants my room tomorrow. A special guest. Mr. Hong Kong Smith."

Miller grimaced. "The grand Mr. Hong Kong Smith! So, he's to be with us again. Brings up a half-dozen herds every season, but he doesn't come with the herds himself. Too rough for him. Takes a boat to New Orleans, then a steamer up the river to St. Louis and then here by way of the Kansas & Western. He brings northern gold to Texas. Pays $5 per steer on the hoof and sells it here in Kansas for $30."

"Odd name for a cattleman," Tancered observed.

"He was a clipper-ship man before the war. Made a pile trading with the Orient. At least that's the story he's spread about himself. My personal opinion is that he made his money running slaves from Africa." Miller drew in a deep breath.

"If you have no objection," Tancered said, "I could put up a cot here in the shop."

"I've no objection. I only wish I could put you up at the house. But we just don't have the room. And during the cattle season it's almost impossible to find a place in town. I'll stop in at the Boston Store this afternoon and have them send over a cot and some blankets."

"That's fine, Mr. Miller. And now I might as well get familiar with the typecases."

"You'll find copy on the hooks. The big one's straight matter, the small one ads."

a little after 6 and went to his hotel where he washed up. Coming down from his room he stood in front of the hotel a few minutes, then crossed the street to the Bon Ton restaurant and had a supper of friend steak and potatoes.

When he came out the street was more crowded than it had been during the day. More horses were tied to the hitchrails.

Up the street a cowboy yipped and emptied his revolver. The shooting was repeated by someone at the other end of the street.

The tinkling music of a piano from the Texas Saloon next door caught his attention and on a sudden impulse he turned and entered.

Tancered found a spot at the far end of the bar and ordered a glass of beer from one of the four bartenders.

Tancered drank some of his beer, but he did not taste it. A girl began singing and he turned and looked toward the stage at the rear of the room.

The ballad was the saga of Sam Older.

Douglas Opposes $5 Billion Lake Project in West

Senator Paul H. Douglas, Democrat, Illinois, today said he had hopes for economy reasons the Senate will defeat the Administration's proposed one to five-billion-dollar upper Colorado irrigation program. The plan includes the controversial Echo Park dam in the Dinosaur National Monument.

Douglas was especially critical of going ahead on the upper Colorado Project before developing a lake and reservoir program for drought states.

The Colorado authorization bill, which barely cleared a House Committee by a one-vote margin, is due to be called up soon in the Senate. The House has not acted on its bill.

Douglas said he intended to fight the project "to the limit."

"Before we start any such projects as this," he said, "this administration should give consideration to a drought relief program in Missouri, Illinois, Texas, Oklahoma, Iowa and other devastated states."

"In my own state of Illinois, fifty counties are in dire condition, and dozens of cities and hundreds of farmers are utterly without a water supply. I am told the same situation pertains in Missouri and Iowa."

"These are thickly populated states, with rich farm lands and prosperous towns."

"Rather than throwing the money into this unsound Colorado River project, the Federal Government with less than half the proposed expenditure could carry out a vast program of building farm lakes, reservoirs for city water storage, and wells for town water supplies. This could be justified because these areas are economically sound, the land is rich and productive, and the population density is tens of times that of the Colorado wilderness.

"I think that if any such expenditures are undertaken, Congress should devote any funds and services to alleviating the critical drought and water storage problem on a sound basis."

Demo Leaders In Huddle With Truman

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Democratic party leaders huddled with former President Truman today in high-level discussions aimed at campaign fund-raising and combatting "overconfidence."

National party Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell said finding enough money to get Democratic congressional candidates before the people this fall was the "primary purpose" of this meeting. But he said he was "personally concerned with overconfidence."

"Generally speaking," he said, "the people are active and aggressive."

PLANE CARRYING STEVENSON STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The plane that carried Adlai E. Stevenson here for a Democratic strategy meeting today was struck by lightning over Montana, the 1952 presidential nominee revealed on his arrival.

Stevenson said the incident gave him one of his "few scares in 25 years of flying."

He said he was optimistic. "If we don't look out, overconfidence will be our greatest problem."

Mitchell said the Democrats otherwise have "the makings of a really great victory, in spite of the advantages held by Republicans."

Mitchell and Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democrats' 1952 presidential nominee, were to meet with Mr. Truman at the latter's Independence, Mo., home.

A number of influential Democrats were on hand Thursday night for informal talks, and Stevenson flew in on the last leg of a tour of Alaska and the Northwest shortly before midnight.

Mitchell predicted the Democrats would win a majority in both houses.

"It'll probably be close in the Senate, but the present indications are that we'll have a substantial majority in the House," Mitchell said.

Among the top Democrats attending the conference were Sen. Earle C. Clements, Kentucky, and Rep. Michael J. Kirwan, Ohio, chairman of the Democratic Senate and Congressional Campaign committees; former national Chairman William Boyle; former U. S. Treasurer George Neese Clark; St. Louis Mayor Raymond Tucker; former Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan, former Air Secretary Thomas Finletter, and Jack Frye, industrialist and former president of Trans World Airlines.

Du Quoin Mayor, L. E. Pyle, Dies

DU QUOIN (AP) — Mayor L. E. (Butler) Pyle, 62, Du Quoin, died early today in Marshall Browning Hospital.

Pyle retired as chief of police April 1, 1952, after 27 years in that post. He was elected mayor in April, 1953, but illness had prevented him from performing the duties of the office since March.

He is survived by his wife, Cecil, Du Quoin; one son, Richard, Decatur; one daughter, Mrs. Charles Ross, Springfield; and his father, Elmer, Du Quoin.

Pyle often said he got the nickname "Butter," by which he was widely known, as a shortened version of "Butterfingers, after I made a few errors" in a sandlot baseball game.

'Nobodies' Lead In All American Golf Tournament

CHICAGO — Golf's "nobodies" were in control of Tam O'Shanter's All American Open today with club pro Harold Williams, who has posted only two minor victories previously, the leader by one stroke after 18 holes of play.

Williams, a 34-year old from Tuscaloosa, Ala., who runs the golf course his father owns, played with his wife's putter Thursday and took only 28 putts en route to a five-under-par 67. It gave him a one stroke margin over five other pros, three of them foreigners, in the $25,000 event which will pay the winner $3,420.

He had a major break in that he teed off in the second three-some of the day, at 6:08 a. m., and weather conditions favored his scoring. One of his partners, Mike Souhak, Durham, N. C., came in with a 69, and one of the 68 shooters, Rudy Horvath, Windsor, Ont., teed off less than an hour later.

Winds Blast Course

The winds came up midway through the day to handicap some of the better known players and not until later in the day did they die down. It was then that Norman Von Nida, Australia, came in with a 68.

Despite the wind, however, Jerry Barber, La Canada, Calif., and Flory Von Donck, Belgium, came in at midway with 68's also.

Tops among the better known players were Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., runner-up for the "world" title last year, and Cary Middlecoff, the former National Open champion from Memphis, who had 69's.

But such players as PGA champion Chick Harbert and the current National Open titleholder, Ed Furgol, were further down in the field. Harbert posted a three-over-par 75 and Ed Furgol was one over with a 73.

Defender Worsham Trails

Walter Worsham, the 1953 PGA titleholder, took a 71 and Lew Worsham, Oakmont, Pa., the "world" winner last year, had a 72. Three time "All American" winner Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, took a 70, and Porky Oliver, Chicago, a 71.

Betsey Rawls, a tourney veteran from Spartanburg, S. C., knocked one stroke off par with a 75 for a lead over par-matches Betty Dodd, Louisville, Ky., Jackie Pung, Glasgow, Ky., and Louise Suggs, Atlanta, Ga., while Babe Didrickson Zaharias, Chicago, trailed by another stroke at 77.

Musial Hits Two Homers, Bats in Seven Runs as Cardinals Beat Dodgers

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

Stan (The Man) Musial is bound to slow down sometime, but that's mighty little consolation for National league pitchers who moan that he's hitting even better than he did 10 years ago.

A comparison of Musial's current batting achievements with those he recorded a decade ago proves that the pitchers know what they're moaning about.

Here's Musial's table:

	R.	H.	RI	AVG.
1954	103	30	400	.343
1944	146	12	94	.347

The 33-year old Musial, with seven weeks still left to add to those totals, gave one of his typical Ebby Field batting displays by driving in seven runs Thursday as the Cardinals smothered the Dodgers, 13-4.

He smashed a three-run homer off Preacher Roe in the third inning, connected for his 30th homer again with two on off Erv Palica in the fourth and then drove in another run with a sacrifice fly in the sixth. Musial thus became the first man in the majors to drive in 100 runs this year.

It also marked the seventh time in his career he has batted in at least 100 runs and it put him only two years short of the National league record held by Mel Ott of the Giants.

Giants Also Fall

Despite the defeat, the Dodgers stayed five games behind the league-leading Giants, who bowed to the Cubs, 6-4.

Ernie Banks drove in three Chicago runs with a homer and a single, his 14th homer in the eighth dissolving a 4-1 tie. Eddie Miksis then followed with another homer off loser Jim Hearn. Hal Jeffcoat was the winner pitcher.

The Yankees cut Cleveland's lead to 1 1/2 games in the American league by beating the Indians, 5-2, with the help of a pair of homers by Mickey Mantle and another one by Joe Collins. Bob Grim, a prominent candidate for rookie of the year honors, won his 14th game although Johnny Sain came to his aid in the seventh. Larry Doby rapped Sain for his 24th homer to put him one ahead of Mantle in that department.

Mantle's first homer off loser Early Wynn gave New York a one-run lead in the fourth inning and after they added another run in the seventh, back-to-back homers by Collins and Mantle featured a three-run eighth.

White Sox Triumph

Paul Richards' White Sox continued to remain a pennant factor with a 5-1 triumph over the Red Sox that moved them only five games off the pace. Phil Cavaretta supplied Bob Keegan with all the runs he needed for his 14th victory with a two-run double in the first inning off Tom Brewer.

Bob Porterfield scattered six hits and registered his 11th victory in hurling the Senators to a 4-1 decision over Detroit. Mickey Vernon put Washington ahead with his 17th homer in the fifth and the winners nicked Steve Gromek for another run in the same frame on doubles by Pete Runnels and Roy Sievers.

Rain forced postponement of the games between the Braves and Phillies and the Reds and Pirates. The Orioles and Athletics were not scheduled.

Thursday's staff: Stan Musial, Cardinals, for driving in seven runs in a 13-4 victory over Brooklyn.

Dempsey and Ketchel Named To Hall of Fame

NEW YORK — (UP) — Jack Dempsey and the late Stanley Ketchel, two terrific punchers who learned to fight in the wild and woolly West, were announced today as top men elected to "moderns" and "old-timers" to boxings brand new hall of fame.

Dempsey, ex-heavyweight champion, led the moderns with a point total of 85, from ballots cast by 111 experts from press, television and radio in the United States and other countries.

Only two other moderns accompanied the "Manassa Mauler" into the new shrine, although a total of 57 were considered in the voting. The fortunate two were Joe Louis, with 78 points, and "triple crown" Henry Armstrong, with 74.

Louis is an ex-heavyweight ruler. Armstrong is the only man in ring history to have worn three world crowns at the same time. They were the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight diadems.

Five Other Champs

The "moderns" are those who fought during the fight game's big business era—from 1919 until the present time. However, only those moderns were considered in the first election who had retired before July 1952.

The "old-timers" were those who fought from the end of the bare-knuckle era, about 1892, until 1919. Middleweight champion Ketchel, who was born in Grand Rapids, Mich., but began fighting in Butte, Mont., led the old-timer voting with 17 points.

The five other champs who made the hall with him were: Bob Fitzsimmons, who at various times wore the middle, light-heavy and heavy crowns, 16 points; Joe Gans, lightweight, 14; Jack Johnson, heavyweight, 13; and James J. Corbett, heavyweight, 12.

Ronnie's, Turner's Win Contests from Carrier Mills Stars

Two Carrier Mills all-star teams were defeated in play this week by Ronnie's and Turner's Kiwanis league teams and under age and emerged with a 15-13 victory. Turner's played all stars of 12 and under and won, 14-6.

Ronnie's continued to beat all opposition in their 15-13 win. The Stars made a big effort to beat Ronnie's but their rally in the third inning fell two runs short of a tie. Clark pitched a six-hitter in gaining the victory. Williams was the winning pitcher. Logan handled the catching for the winners and Reid for the Stars.

Turner's tallied six runs in the second inning and were in no trouble as they thumped the Stars, 14-6. Turner's had 10 hits including five homers. Jahn took hitting honors with three hits including two circuits clouts. Batteries were Ramsey and Jahn for Turner's and Van Hoy and Buckner for the Stars.

Dale Love, Former Local Athlete, Quits As Coach at Bloom

Dale Love, former Harrisburg township high school athlete, has resigned as head basketball coach at Bloom high school of Chicago Heights, according to a story in today's issue of the Chicago Daily News.

Love was head coach at Bloom for six seasons and guided his team to 68 victories and 50 defeats. Only two of his teams posted losing records.

Love, who will enter the automobile sales business, was at Quincy high school for one year, working under head coach George Latham. He is a graduate of Culver-Stockton and did graduate work at the University of Illinois.

In his first year at Bloom, Love's team won four and dropped 19. His fifth year the team won seven and lost 15. Other years the teams had records of 18-8, 18-7, 20-5 and 21-5. Probably the top player developed by Love was Bill Schoof, who ranked as a regular as a sophomore at Iowa last season.

Bloom, with Love as coach, played in Saline county in January, 1952. On Jan. 11 Bloom won from
